

News Release

FRENCH OIL AND GAS INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION, EVOLEN, FOCUSSES ON ENERGY AS A SOURCE OF DEVELOPMENT AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The “Future of Energy” is the Focus of “EvolenDays”, the French Oil and Gas Industry Association Conference, Paris, 17-18 October 2017

12 October 2017

EvolenDays presents a unique opportunity for the ocean business community to interact with oil and gas industry leaders around the future of energy and sustainable development. This 33rd Evolen conference gathers key stakeholders of the oil and gas, petroleum service and supply, subsea and renewable energy sectors.

Aiming at identifying the energies of the future and at fostering innovation, the EvolenDays features international companies, oil and gas producers, technical experts, services and equipment providers and international institutions. Together attendees will address the role of the energy sector in the construction of a sustainable future. Session topics include: digital transformation of the energy sector, carbon capture and storage, offshore energy, geosciences, autonomous systems, LNG opportunities, marine energies, hydrogen, and more. Please find the full program of the two days conference here.

EvolenDays attendees will have the opportunity to meet global industry leaders, inspiring speakers and experts such as Patrick Pouyanné (Total), Jean-Louis Chaussade (Suez), Didier Houssin (IFPEN), Christophe Lecourtier (Business France), and Thierry Lepercq (Engie).

All the information on the programme, the speaker lineup and the registration rates is available on EvolenDays website: www.evolendays.org.

World Ocean Council Members can benefit from a reduced registration rate, equivalent to the rate for Evolen Members. For more information, please contact info@oceancouncil.org.

The upcoming WOC 5th Sustainable Ocean Summit \(SOS\), Halifax, 29 Nov-1 Dec includes a strong focus on the role of the ocean energy sector in sustainable development. Many SOS 2017 sessions will tackle the business challenges and opportunities associated with offshore energy sources: the Ocean Executive Forum and the Ocean 2030 will cover high level consideration of these issue. Other SOS sessions will have focus on solutions to more specific challenges: addressing marine sound, resolving cross-sectoral conflicts between energy and fisheries, advancing Arctic sustainable development, accelerating ocean low carbon energy sources, developing ocean Negative Emissions Technologies (NETs) in support of the Paris Agreement.
